As someone who has been involved with PC from the first one I built - it is obvious that the Microsoft monopoly needs remedial action. Unless Microsoft is split into three parts - OS, application, and browser, there will be no consequence at all for the immoral and illegal activities.

This monopoly has already set back computer development by 10 years. To understand, one only needs to look at the emerging Linux desktop to see the innovation that has been totally killed in the commercial world by this monopoly.
